In A Cappella Audio, a copyrighted recording from 2017, Sultan said that he composed two albums total, one each for all six members. When asked about why he chose to do an a capella group as opposed to a well-known instrument, his answer was that it gave him more freedom to compose since he didn't have to take the limitations of any instrument into consideration. In 2018, Sultan said that all four of them sing and not just Jahangir. In a video from 2018, he said that the idea for this group came from his interest in singing and from listening to The Drifters' hits. He also said that he chose Jahangir as the lead singer because of his "unique voice" and "unusual" approach towards vocals. In 2018, Sultan was asked about his favorite songs and he said that his favorite song is Rukh's "Gureh" (meaning puzzle, as it is both a song and a dance). He also said that there are three different meanings to Gurehan, depending on the way you look at it: The first one is the opposite of "rakh" (which means spiritual), and the other two refer to not falling into hard times. In an interview from 2018, he was asked if the whole group has a different role in their personal lives. He said that they all have their own unique approaches towards life and music, but they do support each other in some matters.
